Declined Detainer Outcome Report

Prepared on: October 8, 2014

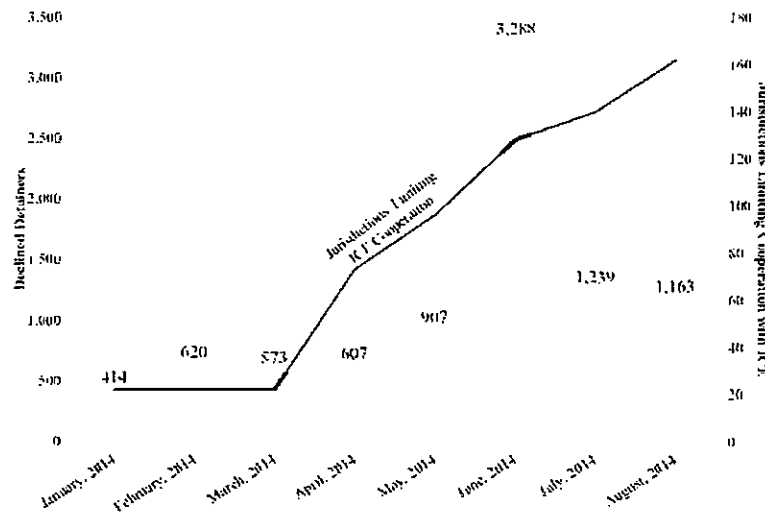

Executive Summary

Following Trust Act enactment in California and Connecticut as well as local policies in more than 270 jurisdictions nationwide limiting cooperation with Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), increasing numbers of local law enforcement agencies (LEAs) have begun not honoring or declining ICE-issued detainers.¹ Concerned about the public safety risks the declined detainer population poses, Congress issued the following request:

(b)(7)(E)

As shown in Figure 1, the number of detainers declined per month has increased substantially between May and June. On June 5, 2014, ERO Executive Associate Director Homan sent guidance to Field Offices reiterating the importance of using the "Declined by LEA" detainer lift code. This may have contributed to the large spike in June. Declined detainers then decreased in July and August, but still remained elevated from earlier months. Between January 1, 2014 and August 31, 2014, ICE Enforcement and Removal Operations (ERO) documented 8,811 declined detainers in 276 counties in 43 states² including the District of Columbia.^{3,4}

ERO found that these 8,811 declined detainees were associated with 8,145 individuals. Out of these 8,145 individuals, 7,600 had one declined detainer, 464 had two declined detainees, and 81 had three or more declined detainees.^{6,7}

Of the 8,811 declined detainees between January 1, 2014 and August 31, 2014, 5,419 (62 percent) declined detainees were associated with 5,132 individuals who were previously charged or convicted of a crime or presented some other public safety concern.⁸ Of this population:

- 3,143 declined detainees were associated with 2,984 individuals with a prior felony charge or conviction
- 3,020 declined detainees were associated with 1,909 individuals with a prior misdemeanor conviction or charges related to violence, threats, assaults, sexual abuse or exploitation, driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol, unlawful flight from the scene of an accident, unlawful possession of a firearm or other deadly weapon, distribution or trafficking of a controlled substance, or other significant threat to public safety
- 888 declined detainees were associated with 239 individuals with three or more prior misdemeanor convictions

Of the 8,811 declined detainees between January 1, 2014 and August 31, 2014:

- 6,397 (73 percent) declined detainees were associated with 6,278 individuals with no subsequent criminal arrest.⁹ Of this population:
 - 1,766 declined detainees were associated with 1,742 individuals with subsequent ICE action (i.e., ICE arrest, book-in or removal)
 - 4,631 declined detainees were associated with 4,536 individuals with no subsequent ICE action (considered at-large)
- 2,414 (27 percent) declined detainees were associated with 1,867 individuals with a subsequent criminal arrest. Of this population:
 - 867 declined detainees were associated with 751 individuals with subsequent ICE action (i.e., ICE arrest, book-in or removal)
 - 1,547 declined detainees were associated with 1,116 individuals with no subsequent ICE action (considered at-large)

Background

Immigration Detainer

The Immigration Detainer (Form I-247) is an ICE-issued notice informing an LEA that ICE intends to assume custody of an individual in the LEA's custody. ICE issues a detainer in three situations:¹⁰

- 1) to notify an LEA that it intends to assume custody of an alien in the LEA's custody once the alien is no longer subject to that LEA's detention;
- 2) to request information from an LEA about an alien's impending release so ICE may assume custody before the alien is released from the LEA's custody; and
- 3) to request that the LEA maintain custody of an otherwise releasable alien no longer than 48 hours to allow ICE time to assume custody.

The immigration detainer provides LEAs with information about an alien's previous criminal history (i.e., felony, multiple misdemeanor, violent misdemeanor), immigration violations (i.e., illegal entry, illegal reentry, immigration fraud), and whether he or she poses a significant risk to national security, border security, or public safety. ICE uses detainers as one of its primary means of identifying and removing criminal aliens from the interior U.S.¹¹

Congressional Request

Following Trust Act enactment in California and Connecticut as well as local policies in more than 270 jurisdictions nationwide limiting cooperation with ICE, increasing numbers of LEAs have been declining ICE-issued detainers.¹² Concerned about the public safety risks the declined detainer population poses, Congress issued the following request:

(b)(7)(E)

In this report, ERO both directly addresses Congress's questions and analyzes the declined detainer population, including its associated public safety risks.

Analysis

In January 2014, ICE ERO added the detainer lift code "Detainer Declined by Law Enforcement Agency (LEA)" to its case management system. This enabled ICE ERO to track all detainers LEAs declined after ICE issuance.

As Figure 2 shows, LEAs decline ICE detainers for individuals with varying criminal histories who later commit additional crimes and/or are subsequently apprehended and/or removed by ICE.

(b)(6),(b)(7)(C)

Figure 2: ICE Detainer Declination and Subsequent Criminal and ICE Action between January 1, 2014 and August 31, 2014

ERO determined these 8,811 declined detainers applied to 8,145 individuals. Out of these 8,145 individuals, 7,600 had one declined detainer, 464 had two declined detainers, and 81 had three or more declined detainers.^{13,14}

Jurisdictions

Between January 1, 2014 and August 31, 2014, 276 counties in 43 states including the District of Columbia recorded a declined detainer (see Appendix A for detailed list of jurisdictions limiting ICE cooperation). As Figure 3 shows, Santa Clara County, Los Angeles County, Alameda County, San Diego County, and Miami-Dade County recorded the most declined detainers during this time.

Table 1 outlines the top twenty detention facilities that declined detainers between January 1, 2014 and August 31, 2014. These facilities include Santa Clara County Jail in San Jose, California; Santa Rita Jail in Dublin, California; Twin Tower Correction Facility in Los Angeles, California; Dade Correctional Facility in Miami, Florida; and Vista Detention Facility in San Diego, California.

Prior Criminal History

Of the 8,811 declined detainers between January 1, 2014 and August 31, 2014, 5,419 (62 percent) declined detainers were associated with 5,132 individuals who were previously charged or convicted of a crime or presented some other public safety concern.¹⁶ Of this population:

- 3,143 declined detainers were associated with 2,984 individuals with a prior felony charge or conviction
- 3,020 declined detainers were associated with 1,909 individuals with a prior misdemeanor conviction or charges related to violence, threats, assaults, sexual abuse or exploitation, driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol, unlawful flight from the scene of an accident, unlawful possession of a firearm or other deadly weapon, distribution or trafficking of a controlled substance, or other significant threat to public safety
- 888 declined detainers were associated with 239 individuals with three or more prior misdemeanor convictions

Subsequent Criminality and ICE Action

Of the 8,811 declined detainers between January 1, 2014 and August 31, 2014:

(b)(7)(E)

- 6,397 (73 percent) declined detainees were associated with 6,278 individuals with no subsequent criminal arrest.¹⁷ Of this population:
 - 1,766 declined detainees were associated with 1,742 individuals with subsequent ICE action (i.e., ICE arrest, book-in or removal)
 - 4,631 declined detainees were associated with 4,536 individuals with no subsequent ICE action (considered at-large)
- 2,414 (27 percent) declined detainees were associated with 1,867 individuals with a subsequent criminal arrest. Of this population:
 - 867 declined detainees were associated with 751 individuals with subsequent ICE action (i.e., ICE arrest, book-in or removal)
 - 1,547 declined detainees were associated with 1,116 individuals with no subsequent ICE action (considered at-large)

1,867 individuals were later arrested 4,298 times after their initial detainees were declined. These subsequent arrests constitute 7,491 charges, as most individuals have multiple charges per arrest. The top criminal arresting charges after a declined detainee are dangerous drugs (10 percent of all charges), driving under the influence of liquor (7 percent), traffic offense (6 percent), stolen vehicle (5 percent), and arson (5 percent).

Spotlight: Subsequent Criminality

Of the more than 4,000 subsequent criminal arrests, individuals with previously declined detainees committed six particularly high-profile crimes against person(s) and/or property:

- On April 16, 2014, Santa Clara County law enforcement arrested an individual for felony first degree burglary and felony resisting an officer causing death or significant bodily injury. Despite nine previous convictions (including seven felonies) since 1996, and a prior removal from the United States, local law enforcement did not honor an immigration detainer ICE issued for the individual. After local law enforcement declined the detainer, the individual was convicted of second degree burglary and obstructing a public officer. On October 1, 2014, the individual was arrested for use/under influence of a controlled substance.
- On April 6, 2014, Los Angeles, California law enforcement arrested an individual for felony continuous sexual abuse of a child. Despite the severity of that charge, local law enforcement did not honor an immigration detainer ICE issued for the individual. After local law enforcement declined the detainer, the individual was arrested for felony sodomy of a victim under 10 years old.
- On March 19, 2014, San Francisco, California law enforcement arrested an individual for felony second degree robbery, felony conspiracy to commit a crime, and felony possession of a narcotic controlled substance. Despite two prior removals from the United States and an extensive criminal history, local law enforcement did not honor an immigration detainer ICE issued for the individual. After local law enforcement declined the detainer, the individual was arrested for felony conspiracy to commit a crime, felony sexual penetration with force, felony preventing or dissuading a victim or witness, felony rape with force or violence, felony rape with force or fear, and felony false imprisonment.

- On February 16, 2014, San Mateo County, California law enforcement arrested an individual for felony lewd or lascivious acts with a child under 14 years old. Despite a prior misdemeanor DUI conviction and the severity of the current charge, local law enforcement did not honor an immigration detainer ICE issued for the individual. After local law enforcement declined the detainer, the individual was arrested for three counts of felony oral copulation with a victim under 10 years old and two counts of felony lewd or lascivious acts with a child under 14 years old.
- On December 19, 2013, the Miami Beach, Florida Police Department arrested an individual for felony grand theft. This individual has a final order of removal from 2009. Despite prior felony convictions for strong-arm robbery and cocaine possession, and prior misdemeanor convictions for larceny, trespassing, theft, marijuana possession, and resisting an officer, local law enforcement decided to not honor an immigration detainer ICE issued for the individual. After local law enforcement declined the detainer, the individual was arrested for aggravated assault with a weapon and larceny. On October 1, 2014, he was arrested for being under the influence of a controlled substance.
- On November 7, 2013, Santa Clara County, California law enforcement arrested an individual for felony grand theft and felony dealing with stolen property. This individual had a final order of removal from 2010. Despite prior felony convictions for narcotic possession, theft, and two other unnamed crimes; and misdemeanor convictions for receiving stolen property and illegal entry, local law enforcement did not honor an immigration detainer ICE issued for the individual. After local law enforcement declined the detainer, the individual was arrested for felony petty theft with priors, felony first degree burglary, and felony resisting an officer causing death or severe bodily injury. Additionally, the charges associated with his November 7, 2013 arrest ultimately resulted in a felony conviction.

Information on Jurisdictions That Have Implemented Detainer Policies Limiting Cooperation with ICE¹⁸

State-Level Legislation

California

On January 1, 2014, California's AB 4, also known as the Trust Act, went into effect, specifying that local law enforcement agencies need only honor ICE detainers for aliens who meet at least one of the following criteria:¹⁹

- Specific serious or violent felony conviction;
- Felony conviction punishable by state imprisonment;
- Specific sexual crimes conviction;
- Misdemeanor conviction within the past five years for a crime that is punishable as either a misdemeanor or a felony, or conviction at any time of a felony for specified offenses
- Federal conviction that meets the definition of aggravated felony;
- Outstanding federal felony arrest warrant as identified by ICE;
- Arrested and taken before a magistrate on a serious or felony charge other than domestic violence and warranting a probable cause finding; or
- Currently registered in the California Sex and Arson Registry.

Even if an individual fits one of these criteria, local law enforcement agencies still have discretion as to whether to honor the detainer.²⁰

Connecticut

(b)(7)(E)

Connecticut's SB 6659, also known as the Trust Act, went into effect January 1, 2014.²¹ Under the legislation, local law enforcement agencies will honor ICE detainers if an individual is convicted of a felony, has a final order of removal, is subject to pending criminal charges, has an outstanding arrest warrant, or is an identified gang member, among other criteria.²²
